Pending disputes still unresolved

- 1QFY22 results were fully in line with our estimates. Main concern is pending disputes on tariff and use-or-pay charges, which still remain unresolved.
- Lack of clarity on capital allocation is still a concern. Hike in dividend payout would be essential to improve valuation, in our view.
- We maintain Hold rating and TP of Rs240 (2.4x Mar23F P/BV, 22.4% ROE in FY23F).

Pending disputes a cause for concern

PLNG 1QFY22 results were in line with our estimates on all counts. Regas volumes at Dahej (194tbtus) and Kochi (15tbtus), EBITDA (Rs10.5bn) and net profit (Rs6.7bn) were all in line with expectations. The qoq weakening in Dahej volumes reflects some impact of the second wave of Covid, the high level of spot LNG prices (which has curbed demand for spot cargoes) and sharp jump in domestic gas production. The bigger concerns relates to two disputes which have yet to be settled (a) for Kochi terminal, PLNG management has offered (and accounted for) a tariff of Rs79.14/mmbtu for FY20, rising by 5% p.a. while the offtakers have sought lower tariffs and (b) in 4QFY21, PLNG indicated that the offtakers have also disputed use-or-pay charges relating to the Dahej terminal of Rs1.98bn (withholding payment of Rs1.44bn and paying the balance under protest).

Management commentary provided update on operations

Even if the offtakers agree to the current level of Kochi tariffs, PLNG admitted that tariffs could be lowered whenever there was a step up in demand (say on completion of pipeline to Bengaluru). Management sought to play down the large capex plans announced in 4QFY21, but gave no indication that the dividend payout cut (59% in FY21 vs 70% in FY20) would be reversed. Against the overall plan of 1000 LNG retail stations, the board initially approved around 25, of which 5 may be implemented in the first stage (and expanded later if the economics work out). Similarly, the bio gas plants will be scaled up only gradually. Dahej capacity will expand from 17.5 to 20mt in first phase (by CY23) and then to 22.5mt in the second phase (by CY24). The agreement for the east coast terminal may be signed in FY22F, in which case capex could commence from FY23F. Overall, capex guidance was Rs5bn-7bn in FY22F and Rs10bn in FY23F. PLNG hopes to take a decision by CY23 on the extension of its existing 8.5mt Ras Gas contract at Dahej (which expires in CY28).

Maintain Hold with TP of Rs240

The stagnant stock price in recent years reflected valid concerns on PLNG's medium term LNG growth prospects, given the sharp increase in domestic gas production and decision of its main customers (IOC, GAIL, GSPC) to build their own LNG terminals. The recent weakness in stock price reflects the concerns on use of cash as dividend payout has been cut and there is limited visibility on how the new capex plans will play out. Any shortfall in domestic gas production will be a positive stock price trigger. The above two pending disputes not resolving in favour of PLNG would be key risks.

Our cash balance estimates are still strong as (a) we have not fully factored in total capex as declared by management and (b) we have cut our dividend payout estimate to 50%, assuming that management will want to use cash rather than raise debt for new investment.

Our volume estimates are largely based on existing firm contracts for use of Dahej and Kochi terminals, with regas tariffs rising by 5% p.a. We assume that PLNG manages to amicably settle the dispute on Kochi tariffs and use-or-pay charges.

PLNG benefits from large volume bookings at its two terminals which will protect its earnings in the event of any sharp drop in Indian LNG demand on the back of higher domestic gas production.

The capex at Dahej on 2 tanks and jetty was made public much earlier. The rest of the capex was announced last quarter and we have assumed relatively slower capex rollout on retail LNG and bio gas.

SOURCES: INCRED RESEARCH, COMPANY REPORTS

The PLNG stock price has stagnated over the last few years due to concerns on growth over the medium term. Further weakening in recent months is due to cut in dividends and lack of clarity on capex plans, which we believe will continue to limit upside in the stock.
